From Case Studies to Application Requirements from Research Communities in the INDIGO-DataCloud project

Tuesday, 10 November 2015 11:25 (15 minutes)

The INDIGO project solutions will support several Research Communities with demanding and complex applications.

A detailed analysis of the requirements to be supported has been prepared on the basis of Case Studies following a template where the Communities can describe their needs through User Stories, and where their specific Data Management needs are also considered.

The experience and lessons learned in the process will be presented.
